

Wally Endicott

Executive Director & “Head Hopeologist”
Kids at Hope NW Resource & Training Center

In the last four years Wally has trained over 2000 Treasure Hunters in the Northwest Region.

Kids at Hope NW now has practitioners in ten school districts, Boys & Girls Clubs of South Puget Sound, Tacoma Rescue Mission, Emanuel Apostolic Church in Bremerton, and all Hope Center tenants to name just some of the partners.

Wally’s community involvement started when he was still in high school when he was a volunteer coach and an officer in his high school Key Club. Over the years Wally has served in numerous board leadership and other volunteer positions including Boys & Girls Clubs, Rotary Clubs, Lions Clubs, Communities In Schools, Dance Theatre Northwest, Lakewood Parks and Recreation and many other community organizations.

Wally earned a B.A. degree with a sociology major and psychology minor from Western Washington State College. He also holds a current high school business teaching certificate issued by Washington State O.S.P.I.

As a life-long learner, Wally has taken leadership training through Pacific Lutheran University, Professional Academy Management Level trainings from Boys & Girls Clubs of America and many advanced Hopeology trainings through the Kids at Hope national office and Arizona State University.

Wally is a husband, father and lives in Steilacoom, Washington.
